IMMUNITY

FOR SENSITIVE AND DELICATE SKIN

HYALO

FOR DRY SKIN

What is immunity?

Definition

The skin is the first defense against bacteria, microbes and toxins.

Epidermal cells

They act as buffers against external agents and protect against pollution, environmental stress and UV rays.

As time progresses, the accumulation of factors such as:

Stress, diet, smog, radiation, heat, pollution

May decrease the power of protective skin cells,

Thus external agents can penetrate inside.

It is necessary to help the skin defend itself from harmful agents from inside and outside

Who is responsible for the skin's immune defenses?

AND

Microbiota

What is it for?

Its balance is essential for the well-being of the skin
regulates metabolic functions,
a fundamental role in the immune system,
protects against infections,
protective barrier against radiation,
external agents and pathogens

What is that?

They are all living microorganisms
physiologically on the skin.
The skin nourishes microorganisms which,
in turn, reciprocate by protecting him.

The new research in the cosmetic field is oriented towards the MICROBIOTA

Why ?

It is necessary to make the Microbiota work well and conserve it in such a way that the skin is protected and maintained for as long as possible.

The better the Microbiota works, the more the skin's well-being increases

By studying the correct functioning of the microbiota, specific formulas and active ingredients for the needs of different skin types have been used for each line and for each different activity.

The answer to the new needs of skin care and well-being thanks to an innovative and effective natural cosmetics formulation technique

Active ingredients with dual functions that enrich and make the formula unique and exclusive because , as well as having their own classic business (anti inflammatory, hydrating, calming) they also possess a specific activity to preserve and make the microbiota function better
